

Asian Medicine: Cultivating Traditions and the Challenges of Globalisation

Seventh International Congress
on Traditional Asian Medicine (ICTAM)

Call for Papers

7. - 11.
September
2009

Institute of Traditional Medicine Services

Thimphu
Bhutan

IASTAM invites proposals for papers on the cultivation of the body, of plants and traditional knowledge and practice. IASTAM also invites proposals on the challenges faced in the globalisation of Asian medicines, tensions between local and universal in production, interpretation, professionalisation, evaluation and trade

www.iastam.org

The International Association for the Study of Traditional Asian Medicine (IASTAM) and the Institute of Traditional Medicine Services (ITMS) encourage papers from Bhutanese scholars from all science and humanities disciplines, as well as from practitioners of Asian medicine (Unani, acupuncture, Sowa Rigpa, Ayurveda etc.). Proposals on any theme or topic are welcome, but papers that address the themes of cultivation and globalisation will be given preference, as will proposals for organised panels over individual papers. A list of panels will be available on: <http://www.iastam.org/conferences.htm>).

Panel and paper abstracts from potential Bhutanese participants of not more than 250 words should be sent via e-mail attachment to Ulrike Cokl until 25.05.2009 (ictam7@gmail.com).

Details:

Ms. Ulrike Cokl at ITMS Thimphu, Bhutan
Tel.: 17836816
Email: ictam7@gmail.com

Photo: Jason Sangster

